The Opportunity

The Global Hygiene Symposium in Singapore (December 6-8, 2023) aims to drive innovative solutions in global health and expedite progress in hygiene as a pivotal component of overall well-being and global health security.

The Global Hygiene Symposium, hosted by RGHI (Reckitt Global Hygiene Institute) and Chatham House, will bring together a diverse array of researchers, policymakers, and practitioners, and will be a platform for exploring ways to give priority to and increase the effectiveness of integrated approaches across hygiene disciplines. The symposium will establish common challenges within the fields of hand hygiene, zoonosis, food hygiene, antimicrobial resistance (AMR), women's health and environmental health, cultivate avenues for cooperation and devise ways to better align hygiene with broader development objectives.

Over the course of three days, the symposium will focus on generating actionable recommendations, tailor-made for real-world implementation and influence on global health security measures.

By sponsoring The Global Hygiene Symposium, partners will be able to align their brand with the critical cause of improving hygiene standards and they will also gain valuable exposure and recognition among a global audience of key stakeholders, decision-makers, and thought leaders. Corporate support will help drive meaningful change, foster collaboration, and empower communities with the knowledge and resources they need to maintain a healthier, safer world.
